Shadows in the Frame (Photoshop)

Tip of the Week by Lisa Hanks on September 13, 2011

Have you ever noticed that when you add a drop shadow to your frame, it casts the shadow inside the frame? If you are going for a realistic look, that isn't it. Don't worry, though, there is a quick and easy way to get rid of that inner shadow.

Step 1: Open Your Layout

- Add all your drop shadow styles to your layout, including the frame.

Step 2: Separate the Shadow Style

- Activate the frame layer in the Layers panel.
- If your styles are not showing, click on the arrow next to the fx, on the frame layer.

- Right click on the Drop Shadow.

- In the drop-down menu, choose Create Layer.

Step 3: Use your Magic Wand

- Get the Magic Wand tool in the Tool Bar.
- In the Options Bar, click on the New Selection icon and place a check mark next to Anti-alias and Contiguous, but do not check Sample All Layers.

- Click inside the frame center with the Magic Wand.
- You should see marching ants inside the frame.

Step 4: Delete the Inner Shadow

- Activate the Drop Shadow layer in the Layers panel.

- Press the Backspace key (Mac: Delete) to remove the inner shadow.
- Press Ctrl D (Mac: Cmd D) to deselect.
